“ Dear Dad, I have been wanting to sign this guestbook for the last few days to say what you meant to me and how you have impacted my life. I came to realize that I could never as eloquently put into words my feelings as eloquently as you lived your life so I am just going to write what I am feeling in my heart. Dad, I am so proud that I am your son and no prouder than today. The kind words that were conveyed to me at your service yesterday and the commonality of those words, were not just typical words of condolences. I heard about your loyalty, your compassion, your generosity, your strength, your humor. I could go on and on. Why did it not surprise me to hear each statement begin with the words "the most", "the best", "the greatest". I was enlightened to the fact that your impact on people reached far greater lengths than I could have imagined and it gave me such joy and peace. Thank you Dad for all you have given me. For being a role model, a mentor, a best friend. Thank you for all the advice and support. Thank you for all the life lessons you taught me and most of all for loving me unconditionally and never turning away when I fell short of your expectations and disappointed you. Thank you for the family you have given me in this hour of need. Above all thank you for your lifelong partner, my mom. As always you seem to have done everything right! Don't worry about mom, dad. We are all here to help her now and will never abandon her because of the loyalty that was instilled in us. You lived your life with love, and dignity and honor and even when things took a turn for the worst these last few weeks you valiantly never gave up. I was never more prouder of you dad. I guess it was just your reminder to me the lesson you always conveyed to me that no matter how hard life knocks you down you keep fighting and you get back up. From this day forward I promise to aspire to be the man you hoped I would be. I owe that to you for all you have done for me. I will always love you dad and will never ever forget you. Love your son, Terry
