“ My Jakob. We were supposed to be forever. We planned our future, our goals and we pushed each other to do our best when times were hard. I’m so Angry. I’m heartbroken, and I’m confused. I want you back. I will carry you with me forever and I’ll always remember you saying to me “we can do this, if we have each other nothing can stop us”. I don’t have you physically anymore but I do have you in my heart. I look up at the stars at night and imagine you looking down on me. I’m staying strong for you, and for me and one day I’ll be able to be in your arms again. Thank you for the laughs, the love you showed me, and the memories that we have. It’s not fair, and there’s many people who I am angry at but being angry will not bring you back. I will share your story, I will share your struggles and how strong you were through all you went through, and I’ll stand strong for us. I love you J ❤️ forever and ever.

“ Jakob, you will forever occupy a special place in my heart. Sadly, your inner struggles and emotions remained unknown to those around you. Your inability to tolerate being alone drew many individuals into your life, though many of them had ulterior motives. I must learn to release my anger and resentment towards those who were present during that difficult period & did nothing to push you to be better but kept dragging you down. I have to give all of that to God. Following your passing, it has become apparent that many individuals who were not genuinely invested in your well-being when alive are now expressing remorse and pretending to have been supportive all along. Im so sad that you never had the opportunity to experience the benefits and joys of a sober life, which you so rightly deserved. My heart aches for our son, and I have every confidence that we will meet again in the future. As Seth and I often reassured you, our support and care were unwavering and unconditional towards you no matter what the situation or circumstances were. I will continue to care for your nana, whom I have grown to love and cherish as my own family. Your passing has been the most devastating and heart-wrenching experience of my life, and I will forever keep your memory alive. - Alexis

“ Rest in peace Jakob. Thank you for letting me be in a chapter of your life. I still don't believe it if i'm being honest. I never imagined this. I never imagined it would take you....But i guess that was naive of me. I send my condolences to your Nana and your baby's mother. I love you, forever and always.

“ I first met Jakob at The Owl's Nest, where I was one of the therapists at the facility. From the very first day, we formed a special bond—more like a big sister and little brother relationship.

I was tough on him at times, but only because I saw his potential. I knew he had what it took to be the very best version of himself, and I wanted him to believe that too.

When I heard about his passing, my heart broke. I loved Jakob deeply, and I will truly miss his bright smile and warm hugs.

My deepest condolences go out to his son and family. May you find comfort in knowing how much Jakob was loved and the impact he had on those around him.
