“ Jason was an extremely skilled and creative colleague at the Med U. Besides organizing the infrastructure we use to get our work done he also contributed greatly to the spaces we use to educate our advanced medical trainees, the next generation of those that provide medical care for others. He was a delight to bump in to around campus and I regret not having more time to be around him. I can only imagine how his loss has dimmed your world if missing his light has dimmed ours. Know that his imprint will be all over the Med U for years to come.
