“Kimberly, or Kim, as we called her, is my cousin and though we had small conversations over the years, I knew her better as a young girl, trying her best to keep up and play with her older sister and myself, her cousin. We would meet at Granny’s house and ride big wheels, play Barbies, and dolls. We mostly like to ride our bikes around Granny’s house, down the road to her house and through the backyard and garden of the neighbor between and then back to do it all again. We must have looked the fool to make those circles over and over and never seeming to go anywhere, but we were always pretending. We’d mimic TV shows we enjoyed like ‘Dukes of Hazard’ and ‘BJ and the Bear’. Poor Kim, she being the youngest and smallest, was always relegated to being the Bear which wasn’t a bear, but a chimpanzee. She was a trooper and a very kind person. She lived too few years, but she shared a lot of love with those around her. She is missed. May the memories of those in sorrow be a comfort. My heart is with you.”
