“Patricia was my mother and my best friend. She was a great mom and tried to protect her kids and she was comical at the same time. When I was a young child my siblings were playing outside and were getting stung by bees. She told us to stay in the house while she ran out with a broom. We were watching her out the window and we see her running down our large driveway swinging the broom over her head and there was a swarm of bees chasing after her. Of course, us kids were laughing away.”
