

Roderic Russell Mitchell Joyner

November 2, 1967 - November 7, 2023

Roderic Russell Mitchell Joyner was born into poverty in one of the most dangerous cities of the U.S., Baltimore Maryland. Despite all of the odds being stacked against him, he persevered. He joined the Special Forces Ranger Regiment of the United States Army and jumped out of planes. He was trained to give lifesaving care as a medic and utilized this training during Desert Storm, and other assignments around the world. The journey of his military career led him to Germany where he met his wife, Sabine. After his assignment in Germany was completed, they went to Kansas where they had their first daughter, Raven.

Roderic Joyner left the military in 1997 and moved back to Germany with his wife, where in 2005 they had their second daughter, Caylin. After living and working in Germany for ten years the family moved back to the U.S. and settled down in South Carolina. During his civilian career, he worked in different fields, but mostly worked in manufacturing. He had a strong work ethic and continuously challenged and motivated his coworkers to be their best.

Besides his passion for work, he had several hobbies. Roderic's hobbies included music, and his unwavering esprit the corps. At a young age, he taught himself to play guitar and continued to perfect his craft throughout the entirety of his life, even joining a band while in Germany. Despite getting out of the Army, Roderic's patriotism remained steadfast. He was a avid collector of military memorabilia, weapons, and tactical gear.

Roderic deeply cared about his family, and friends. He will be dearly missed, and the void his absence leaves is unfillable. He is survived by his wife, Sabine, as well as their two children Caylin and Raven. He also lives on with his granddaughter, Amara.
