“ RD Hutto will remain in memory as a selfless spirit having malice toward none, a passionate and gifted athlete and fan, a charismatic leader and first-rate QB. His short-lived 38 yrs made the tragic world a better, easier place in which to exist for all who knew him. May he rest with the angels. May his loved ones find peace and comfort amidst the all to sudden and unfair news. RIP RD

“ I will never forget you. You were always so much fun to be around, endless laughter. I didn't ever have to worry about being judged by you. The most caring, open hearted person. I'm so honored to have been your baby cousin. I am so heartbroken by this, but I am just trying to be happy because I know your happy in your mom's arms. I'm so thankful my girls were able to meet you and have you in their life. I will make sure they always know who you are and tell all the fun stories of the amazing times we had. Thank you for being you & tell all our loved ones I said Hello in Heaven. I love you RD. Xoxo.

“ I only knew RD in Kindergarden. Called him R2D2. He was a really neat young fella back then. After reading so many things his friends have written, sounds like he grew up to be a neat young man. My thoughts and prayers are with his family. May God give you the extra strength you will need in the days and weeks ahead. Martha White
