“ Sean has been my best friend since the 7th grade. I have so many wonderful, crazy, amazing stories/memories/inside jokes from all of our years together. Sean would do anything for his friends - no matter how ridiculous the request might seem in the moment - and ask for nothing in return. He was such a genuine individual, and I'm devastated that we don't have the ability to create even more everlasting memories. Rest In Peace my friend

“ I remember Sean as a happy, easy-going baby who brought joy, purpose & hope to my grandmother Taylor who babysat for him from time to time. Although I didn't see him often, I couldn't help but notice his friendliness when I did. I'm so glad to know he enjoyed many adventures through travel, friends, family & his love for animals. R.I.P. Sean. Peace, comfort & prayers for Dale, Vicki & Ashley now & in the days ahead.

“ I met Sean when we both worked at Circuit City in 2005. We were the only two people in our department and had so much in common. We were the iPod salesmen, we hung out a lot by ourselves, shared funny stories, and talked about video games, movies, music, just about everything.

I have so many classic stories about the two of us working retail, it was a horrible place to work but Sean and a few others made it bearable. He got me through a lot of bad times by just being himself. I wish I could have returned the favor.

One of my favorite stories is when a customer called in about some obscure item, a wind-up hurricane/weather radio maybe, and the customer just would not stop talking. Sean and I passed the phone back and forth to give the other a break. After about 30 minutes with the customer never giving us a moment to talk, Sean and I looked at each other and just set the phone down gently on the counter and walked away. Nearly an hour later we can back and we could still hear the guy talking through the phone. It sounds silly now but moments like that meant a lot and now they're treasured memories for me.

Ran out of room to type or something. Anyway, I have missed him and I will continue to miss his company dearly.

For those who may not have gotten to know him, they really missed out on meeting a genuinely good person.

See you around, "TheSean" Taylor. This place is less fun without you.

“ *First time meeting Sean he was but a small boy. He looked at me and smiled with his mouth and his eyes. I liked Sean. We ate our Holiday meal at his Nana Madge’s house and along with Ashley we walked to my house for brownies and ice cold Coca Cola. Shortly after the rest of the family arrived Ashley played us a concert on the piano, Sean kept time with his foot. Ashley did the Macarena dance for us, Sean kept time with his foot. Pleasant conversation, respect and that same eye smile he gave me each time we met as he became a man. I’m thinking today of this joyous feeling in my heart knowing our Holy Mother Mary took Sean so softly in her arms and carried him safely home.
Keep the door open for me Sean.
