“ What a grand Southern lady she was; always hospitable and engaging. I enjoyed every moment I spent around her and Grange. They always made everyone feel so welcome. I never knew the creek had a name before she mentioned it last time we were there. She told stories of the early days in Meggett and the cabbages. I remember her once saying that, every now and then, she liked a nice fat mullet. So many other stories she had. I know she's at home with her true love now. Our prayers are with you all at this time.
